

SACHIKO TERAMURA (b1986)

Sachiko Teramura is a fiber molding artist who uniquely expresses "an interesting yet sickly image" of young women using a special technique of Japanese traditional-dyeing and print. Her work symbolizes a duality in young women of loveliness and desperate calculation. She has produced three-dimensional flower-like objects reminiscent of life forms allowing insects to carry pollen instead of sucking honey or like a jellyfish which fluffily drifts and eats fish in the sea.

1986 Born in Hyogo

2010 BFA, Tama Art University

2011 Awarded Grand Prix of Maebashi Art Compe Live

2012 MFA, Tama Art University

<Solo exhibition>

2011 Ako City Library (Ako, Hyogo)

2012 Tachibana Gallery (Osaka)

2013 Tachibana Gallery