

Laura Jordan is an acclaimed British illustrator who creates intricate, large-scale cityscapes. Not only is Laura's work technically impressive, but she also manages to capture something of the heart and soul of the cities she depicts. Drawing in small sections, the artist builds up various scenes and features of a given city which she then knits together to produce the larger city scene.

Laura studied Graphic Design at the University of the Arts London.

Laura has built up an international reputation, having exhibited her work in London, New York, Paris, Hong Kong and Singapore.
