

Chang Ching Short Description

Chang Ching is a Taiwanese Christian who has perfected the traditional art of wood-carving and used it to illustrate Biblical stories. The size of his works can be gauged from "The Wilderness" which captures the sense of isolation and drama in the wilderness wanderings of the Israelites.

Wood sculptor literally followed a dream when he made a radical career shift in middle age. With the voice that he heard from god telling him to apply himself to sculptures, Chang Ching, at his age 47. Chang began his wood carving career with portrayals of human and animal figures, but eventually moved onto depicting the majesty of nature in landscape pieces.

In this work, Chang tried to use two entirely different techniques of wood carving, as well as a brand-new way of creation, which shows various aspects of beauty and a perfect appearance viewing from any angle around the sculpture for appreciation.
